These doubters also should remember the government's refunding of their mortgages, and the government's assumption of home mortgages. They have seen parity between farm prices and what the farmer pays established—established as firmly as a national policy—as manhood suffrage—the farmers say.

Whether this parity will be continued by direct government payments, by federal repurchase of unprofitable farms, or by a new frightfulness in the way of free trade with the earth, remains to be seen. That the farmer's debts will be compromised, or paid in cheap dollars, and his share of the national income increased, may be safely assumed to be a major, permanent purpose, and no passing "recovery" idea.

"Modest" Returns.

This statement suggests no animosity, recognizes the brotherhood of all classes of the population, and desires to harm no man. But please observe, it calls for "modest salaries" and "modest returns" on capital." If this doesn't look directly toward a limitation of profits and somebody's decision besides stockholders as to the wages to be paid workmen, it means nothing at all. It might be construed as a pious wish, or bucolic hookum.

Those who think so had better review the fate of other rural demands. They should consider Muscle Shoals. Boulder dam, the Great Coulee dam, the Sacramento valley and all the Sacramento valley and all the Coulee dam, the Great Coulee dam, the G

They couldn't dictate to the janitor in the jail. But I'll tell you one thing. We're going to have to jack up what we pay. Nobody's going to let us get 21 cents a pound and keep on paying 75 cents a pound and labor. But that's all right. Fair enough."

anoor. But that's all right. Fair enough."

All this probably will appear to the average reader as fair. But I want to point out that the very idea that fairness had anything to do with the price of manufacturer paid for his material is not only something new under the sun, but is a radical departure from the "American system" and from the possibilities heretofore admitted by orthodox political economists. It is "regulated" industry. It is an attempt at an artificial distribution of wealth.

To be sure it was done in this case under cover of a national emergency, but if anything about the situation is plain it is that not only the farmers, but the merchants and a great many industrialists are committed to this procedure as a permanent policy.

this procedure as a permanent policy.

It is the very pith of the agricultural program, the life of the labor councils, the theme of the churches, the new doctrine of the universities, the secret of the invincible popularity of the new deal. It may not be practical or desirable to dictate such things. But desirable, or not, it is plainly observable that this is what the people want, expect, and at present are in a mood to have.

Mississippi Senate Passes Banking Reform Bill by 24 to 6.

By the Associated Press. Intra-governmental problems occu-pied the attention of legislators in Mississippi, Virginia and South Caro-lina today.

In South Carolina, the house yes terday adopted a resolution calling for a sweeping probe of the state highway department to determine whether it exercised "improper control" of state matters and the senate acted favorably on a measure to shorten the governor's term of office. The senate action pointed to possibility of a referendum to decide whether the governor should serve two years or four.

The Virginia house of delegates, meanwhile, passed a congressional redistricting bill and sent it to the governor for his signature. The Virginia senate adopted an administration bill senate adopted an administration bill establishing the principle of a minimum program of education. The house rejected a resolution curbing measures for increase of taxes and this was regarded as a victory for the administration's program calling for $875,000 for public schools, the governor declared.

In Mississippi, the senate yester-day approved a banking reform bill and the house wound up consideration of major revenue measures embraced in the $23,000,000 budget program by passing a voluminous privilege tax bill. The bank bill provides for a comp-troller instead of a bank superintendent and regulates renewals of loans made by officers or employes of the state banking department. It also makes provisions to allow state banks to take advantage of the new federal laws passed for their protection and Municipal Bankruptcy Bill Studied by President and Congressmen.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.-(P)-President Roosevelt gave serious consideration today to the house municipal bankruptcy bill in a conference with congressional leaders which indicated a fresh push in the senate for the legislation.

Chairman Ashurst, of the senate judiciary committee; Senator Neely, democrat, West Virginia, and Chairman Sumners, of the house judiciary committee, attended.

The legislation would permit twothirds of the creditors to go intc. court and arrange for a "fair readjustment" of the interest and principal of the securities in default.

The attitude of the president was not disclosed, but he recently declared himself in favor of a gene: al reduction in interest payments e: al reduction in interest payments on outstanding obligations.

Ashurst said the senate attitude would be sought immediately and indicated presidential favor for legislation along this line.

Meanwhile, Reconstruction Corporation loans to municipalities and school districts was opposed before a house banking subcommittee by Chairman Jesse Jones.

Appearing to give his views on numerous bill sproposing such loans, Jones explained, "I have never thought it desirable for the government to start lending to cities and ment to start lending to cities and counties." He said the same situation applied as to school districts, and recommended that in any case the RFC should have the security of a "middle man" such as banks and insurance companies.

"RACE HORSE GASOLINE" LETS YOU DOWN IN THE LONG RUN! Most gasolines are loaded with quick-starting elements at the sacrifice of power and mileage. Improved Super Shell is the first gasoline to successfully combine instant starting with full mileage. Better change to Super Shell.

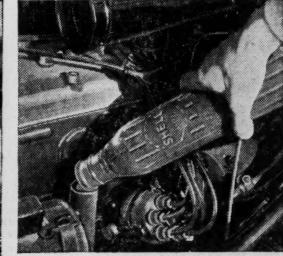

SAVE MONEY... by using the improved Super Shell, se you get quicker starting with less gasolin gasoline, in every gallon, for extra mileage. Improved Super Shell starts quicker and gives you more mileage in winter. Better use Super Shell and save your money—get an extra mile per gallon.

"I live on a budget," says Miss Nancy Dowst, Miami, Florids, shown above, "and I have to watch the pennies spent on gasoline. I've noticed quite a difference in gas expenditures since I started using Super Shell." Miss Dowst is typical of thousands who recently changed to the new improved Super Shell for its quicker starting and extra mileage. Try a tankful yourself today.

— says Mr. L. M. Alley, Birmingham, Alabama. "With Super Shell I now get anywhere from a half mile to two miles or more extra per gallon. These extra miles add up quick and amount to real money."

ANOTHER WAY TO GAIN MILEAGE

Are you using the proper grade of motor oil for your car? It can make a big difference in your mileage. The quality of your oil, too, is even more important. Shell dealers know the correct grade of oil for your car. When you stop for Super Shell Gasoline you will find the Shell station the safe place to buy your oil as well.

disbanded Saturday, Irving S. Nathan, attorney for the Fulton county relief administration, announced Tuesday night after an investigation of the association.

Nathan, who began the inquiry after it was learned that CWA workers were paving 25 cents a week into the organization as a sick benefit fund, said all records had been turned over to him by the officers and that all to him by the officers and that all money paid in by the workers had been accounted for legitimately.

The charter of the organization, he said it was found, provided that the workers would pay in 25 cents a week. If one of the members became ill a committee would investigate and a meeting would be held. Members then would vote the ill member a sum of money from the treasury, depending on circumstances and the treasury contained, provided two-thirds favored such action.

Officers of the organization, Nathan said, are CWA workers and none received pay for his official services. He said the president, for instance, had paid his dues to the group regularly and had never received a benefit.

Nathan said the officers were fully exonerated of any intent to defraud workers and that there had been no violation of any law. The CWA officials, he added, however, had explained to the officers of the organization that there were federal agencies which would take care of CWA workers in event of illness or injury and this private organization was not seen in the constitution when the constitution was not the constitution when the constitution was not the constitution when the constitution was not constituted by the constitution of the constitution of the constitution was not constituted by the constitution of the constitution and this private or injury and this private organization was unneeded. The CWA also objected to the use of its name by the organization and it was agreed to disband it. No further action will be taken, Nathan said

TO BE SHOWN TODAY

The new six-cylinder Oldsmobile which arrived by express Tuesday, will be on exhibition today at Mitchell Motors, Inc., 330 Peachtree street, dealers.

The car is a special show model, and came here direct from the Chicago automobile show which just closed. It is not a car specially made for display, but was hand-built to be ready for the shows at New York and Chicago.

Chicago.

This six-cylinder creation by Oldsmobile is beautifully fashioned after its larger sister powered by an eight-cylinder motor. The basic price range puts it into the light car field, being only a few dollars above the lowest priced cars on the market.

The new Oldsmobile six and eight is being featured with a special announcement display. While the six-cylinder car will be for display only the dealers are prepared to demonstrate and deliver eight-cylinder models immediately. The Oldsmobile factory will go into production on the (six) some time this month, and announce that dealers will have them ready for the public the first few days in March.

The Transcript feels that any treaty of human migration should include consideration of the great dispersions of people in the days before the beginning of history, including the retreat of man in the areas. glacial age and the later migrations of primitive peoples whose traces scientists now seek. Of more direct influence in America was the migration of 75,000 Englishmen to the new world, followed soon after by the exodus of 400,000 Huguenots from France.

Our Boston contemporary calls attention to the thousands who were involved in the rush from New England to Ohio in the opening years of the nineteenth century, the rush of forty-niners and their successors to California and the migration of the Mormons to Utah. During the past decade or doubled.

The Automobile Association of England, an organization corresponding to the American Automobile Association, but which plays a more active part in British motoring affairs, has presented to the ministry of transport an exhaustive memorandum on the need for steps to be taken to solve the problem of rapidly increasing road acci-

The association reports that after careful investigation it has reached the belief that existing laws are adequate and that the increase in accidents is due to "a substantial increase in careless or dangerous driving-either in the form of excessive speed or in the nature of the disregard of the ordinary rules and courtesies of he road."

The development of highways 'along progressive lines" is held to be a question that should be given the most serious consideration, and the following suggestions are submitted as steps that would increase road safety:

(a) The construction and mainteance of non-skid road surfaces. (b) The construction of road surfaces which are light in color and, therefore, a definite aid to drivers at night, and particularly when wet. (c) The improvement or removal of obstructed sight lines and dangerous cross falls.

While the American Automobile Association, because of the greater distances in the United States, can hardly be expected to render so allround service as its kindred organization in Great Britain, it could serve well if it were to inaugurate or lend the full strength of its support to such a study as has been undertaken in England and to a movement to bring vitally needed changes in road conditions in this just behind.

Italy and Fascism.

Apart from the matchless beauty of the whole Italian scene, there is of course, always the experiment of fas-cism which intrigues the inquiring re-porter. How does it work? Has it made people happier? Will it last? Is Mussolini's credit unimpaired? What advance has been made in the industrial, the cultural, the social industrial, the cultural, the socia field in the 12 years that fascism has been at work in the Appenine penin sula? These are the questions that rise up naturally in the minds of mer who try to keep abreast of the times.

The first answer is: There is or der and quiet in Italy. Everybody knows that. But to the man wh wants to look a little below the sur face it is not enough to be assured that trains run on time in Italy and that the duce has constructed several fine new automobile roads. What has become of his famous motto to do away with the so-called class war do away with the so-called class war?
Has there been a reconciliation between capital and labor? And the answer is: No. The old class distinctions persist and are growing more acute every day. The majority of the members of the fascist party itself are growing more and more radical. Nobody shouts this from the housetops in Rome. It takes a deal of dexterous questioning to discover the true nature of the situation.

of dexterous questioning to discover the true nature of the situation.

Parliament is a mere rubber stamp for Mussolini's private decrees. Discussion is prohibited. All the people have to do is obey. They are told that their private or group interests must be subordinated to the national interest. A fine-sounding slogan, but interest. A fine-sounding slogan, but really it works infinite hardship on the poor. It is like that saying of Anatole France: "The majesty of the law forbids both the poor man and the rich to sleep under the bridge. This is no hardship for the rich man He wouldn't sleep there anyway. But the poor man may be compelled to.

The same with those decrees of Mussolini's in the national interest. It's nothing for the rich to sacrifice a little from their affluence, but when the poor must offer up even from the small wealth he possesses, he not only becomes poorer but he approaches the verge of destitution. Culturally speaking, nothing has come from Italy since fascism came into power. What's more, nothing can come. When people are restricted in the expression more, nothing can come. When people are restricted in the expression of their opinions, in thought, in research, in social experimentation, there is bound to come sterility. Just watch Germany, another fascist country, now. There they burn books and proscribe free inquiry. That means cultural death, or to speak more hope fully, as befits a liberal, at least tem porary stagnation.

News Behind the News By Paul Mallon.

YARN WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 .- The biggest laugh of the month is the yarn actually published throughout the country that Mr. Roosevelt "does not and cannot invent his policies." The second biggest is the smart talk among Washington insiders that the president is a coward and runs from his policies whenever the going gets rough.

If there is one thing Mr. Roosevelt has, it is courage. He gambles more with policy than any president ever has. The shrewdest politicians here say that is his chief fault. He takes chances needlessly, where he could play safe.

The main worry of his friends is that he will not keep his courage under control.

CONFUSION The president's associates have been somewhat confused by the decisions he has made during the past week. They regard his ultimatum on air mail contracts, his peculiar handling of the stock market legislation, and his original intentions on the export corporation as not quite up to the stiff par that he has set for himself. The master's touch has been

The routine at the White House was interrupted by the illness last week of Louis Howe, Mr. Roosevelt's only confidential adviser. Mr. Roosevelt is worrying about Howe's illness much more

The situation has really become so serious that the president is afraid Howe will not be back to his regular job any time soon. They have gone through the thick of the fight together and it is only natural that the president should miss his political comrade in arms.

BACKEDWATER Everyone who claims to be smart around Washington and New York is saying that Mr. Roosevelt backedwater on the NRA, CWA and the Warren gold policy. They are spreading the word around that if sufficient opposition is built up to anything the president has in mind, his ultimate judgment may be influenced.

They are mistaken, as they usually are. The president plays both ends of the political game, left and right. He listens to all sides but in the end makes his own decisions. No one else could invent his policies.

The elder conservatives of his party come trooping into the White House from time to time trying to analyze his motives. So do the liberals. Neither group feels secure. Both have a hunch that while Mr. Roosevelt says "fine, fine" to all they advocate, he may not indorse what they demand.

What he does is to take both sides of a question in advisory councils and try to hit a happy medium. His gold policy was the tip-off on his method. He took the Warren theory and revised it to meet all political obligations. What you ultimately got in the existent gold policy is the Roosevelt version of Warren's thesis.

WEATHER Too many cooks spoiled the spudding in the arrangements made by Speaker Rainey for the reception of the president's stock exchange legislation.

The kindly Mr. Rainey informed the White House that he would keep the house in session until 3:30 p. m. The thermometer fell. House members decided that it was too cold to remain in session even for a presidential message. The members adjourned and went home to get warm.

The president was astounded to learn that the house had walked out on him and his stock market message had to be delayed until the next day.

MARGINS The nominal authors of the bill, Rayburn and Fletcher, agreed that no specific margin requirement should be included. The liberal prosecutor, Pecora, is supposed to have objected to that arrangement and insisted that the 60 per cent margin requirement provision be retained. Chairman Rayburn, of the house committee, was not advised about the change of play and neglected to include that provision in the measure he introduced in the house.

Five minutes before the president's message was released, Fletcher sent one of his clerks scampering up to the press gallery to announce that both his and Rayburn's bill would contain a flexible margin requirement.

The whole story of that bill is yet to be told. (Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon.)

Where Wealth Makes People Seem Important, the Unimportant Display Their Wealth By Robert Quillen-

Men in prison, however varied their previous interests, soon cease to think or talk about anything but their guards, their fellow prisoners and themselves. They are like sick men, whose thoughts dwell on their suffering for want of other interests within their reach.

A similar poverty of interests explains the intellectual famine in small towns. Shut off from the world, despite the radio, motor cars and newspapers, the people mentally stew in their own juices. People discuss the most interesting thing within their environment, and in a small town they seldom find anything more interesting than The study and discussion of people is not in belief a thing to be deplored. Philosophers, teachers and scientists have made it a life work.

he fault lies in the nature of the discussion. To "talk about people" means to talk about the shortcomings, weaknesses and sins of people.

The explanation lies deep in the marrow of human nature. In the first place, people who are free to choose between two subjects of conversation will naturally select the one of greater interest. And sin, as a rule, is more interesting than virtue-possibly because discussion of it permits enjoyment of naughtiness without paying the piper; possibly because sin has the flavor of adventure and rebellion; possibly because virtue is ordinary and sin unusual enough to have news value.

The temptation to gossip is great. Everybody likes to hear himself talk; everybody likes to be the center of attention. And he is certain of both delights if he is equipped with a juicy morsel of scandal. Thus it is that a small tale becomes a great one. Those who hunger for attention, and lack the wit or charm to win it, can hold the center of the stage merely by telling a story of somebody's naughtiness. How thrilling it is to have an eager and excited audience! No wonder the story teller lies a little and improvises and adds a bit here and there. The worse the scandal the greater the interest.

But the victim of an "inferiority complex," desperate for want of notice, isn't the only one who manufactures gossip. The tales that have an edge of malice are products of envy and Thus it is that that family in the biggest house, the merchant who makes the most money and the girl with the most boy friends are the people "talked about," while those who have nothing that anybody covets may live in blissful obscurity, undiscussed and unslandered.

Comment at the Capital

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Lindbergh Is Center of Mail Contract Controversy.

By DAVID LAWRENCE. WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 .- It is not every day that the White House reprimands a nation's hero—the same being Chares A. Lind-

DAVID LAWRENCE ment about Colonel Lindbergh's telegram dissent ing from the arbitrary way in which air mail contracts were abrogated, but on behalf of the White House the statement was made that all the points made by America's ace flyer didn't merit consideration by the president because the message wasn't properly handled This answer is often given when the White House desires to avoid making an answer. As a matter of fact, the air mail companies were not given courteous treatment when all of them had their contracts annulled-the innocent and the guilty being lumped into one cancellation. And if Colonel Lindbergh had not made public his telegram it would have reposed in the White House files and he could still have been subjected to criticism for making it public later.

Sometimes the White House takes the position that open letters and telegrams will not be answered, but it usually depends on who sends the open letter or telegram. Thus not long ago when the head of the NRA western state telegraphed his resignation and gave it to the press, the administration here answered quickly enough and tried to per-suade him not to resign.

There is no official courtesy about such matters. Any American citizen has under the constitution the right of petition. There's nothing in the constitution which says the pe-tion cannot be given to the press either in advance or after it has been sent to the government. The present administration, following a precedent set by its predecessors has indicated that it does not like open letters or telegrams.

Of course, there is no reason why the president should make any pubthe president should make any public comment on a statement or letter issued by anybody. But the Lindbergh message was such a pointed criticism of the treatment of the air mail companies and their stockholders and employes that, figuratively speaking, the administration winced under the blow and contented itself by transferring the responsibility from the White House to the post office department.

Now as a matter of fact the sit-

Now as a matter of fact the situation isn't as bad as it looks to Colonel Lindbergh and maybe his protest will have the effect of compelling consideration and courtesy for those aggrieved. But the colonel ought to know by now that ever since the investigating fever started since the investigating fever started here and government-by-headline be-gan to wreck reputations by innu-endo and otherwise, the chance of the innocent has been more or less reduced.

The fact is the air mail sit The fact is the air mail situation showed there existed fraud and collusion. The president probably became disgusted with the whole business and told the postmaster-general to chuck all the mail contracts out of the window. Now that this has been done, the question arises as to what the government is going to do next. do next.

The army air service does not have the experience immediately to carry on air mail flying. So the postoffice department will have to make 60-day contracts with some of the private companies now carry-ing the mails.

The injustice involved is that many of the companies are in no position to stand a permanent canellation of their contracts and may lose their valued personnel in the interim period while the government is trying to figure out what to do.

It is not clear yet that all the companies will be stopped from bidding for new contracts to replace those just cancelled. The measure to the aviation companies is so phased that it does not specify which contracts are being cancelled as a result of the discovery of collusion and fraud and which ones are being annulled under the general powers of the postoffice department. This means, therefore, that each company which can prove that it was not guilty of fraud in acit was not guilty of fraud in ac-quiring contracts will be eligible to bid. As for the power to can-cel, there is a general provision giving the postmaster-general such authority. People who invest money in contracts may not know how arbi trary the government can be when it suits its purpose, and there have been plenty of apprehensions expressed on this point before, but the cancellation of the air mail contracts ought to open the eyes of all businessmen and those who finance their transactions that doing business with the government is never the sure thing that that it appears on the surface.

Redress can always be gotten on just causes in the court of claims, but this sometimes takes years to adjudicate. The aviation companies had no alternative. They could not have been developed with-out government aid. That's why the companies innocent of wrongdoing are protesting. And in the end they will not suffer, because the chances are public criticism will cause a reinstatement of air mail contracts that deserve to be (Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution.)

Analysis of Financial Situation Given in Talk by R. W. Courts Jr.

Richard W. Courts Jr., well-known ment and collapse of private credit, financier of the firm of Courts & Co., of Atlanta, made a talk yesterday before the Atlanta Rotary Club, of which he was the speaker guest.

Mr. Courts was invited to discuss financial and currency conditions and he responded with a most interesting analysis of the situation, saying, among other things:

"In this discussion we might first ask "what is currency?" In simple language it is a yardstick for measuring relues and the court of the strength of the collowing:

"2. To make loans to industry.

"3. For expenditures in public works.

among other things:

"In this discussion we might first ask "what is currency?" In simple language it is a yardstick for measuring values. Next, we might ask, "What is gold?" In a monetary sense gold is the arbitrary reserve back of most of the world's currencies. Under normal conditions it was customary for most of the yald-standcies. Under normal conditions it was customary for most of the gold-standard countries to try to maintain gold reserves of approximately 40 per cent of their outstanding currencies. It was the amount of gold behind a given currency that determined that currency's purchasing power so that if the gold reserve behind a particular currency should increase substantially above 40 per cent, the purchasing value of that currency in terms of others would tend to rise while if the gold reserve should decline appreciably below 40 per cent, the purchasing value of that currency would tend to decline in terms of other currencies.

"During the war the belligerent countries shipped their gold to us in the purchase of supplies and in addition borrowed tremendous amounts. dition borrowed tremendous amounts, so that we came out of the war not only a creditor country, but in possession of most of the world's gold supply. It was not many years after, that we found we had a gold reserve of about 70 per cent behind our currency, while most other countries had about 25 per cent or less so that the about 25 per cent or less, so that the purchasing value of our currency tended to increase in terms of other currencies. So much for gold.

"Now, let us define currency infla-tion. As far as practical result is concerned, currency inflation is noth-ing in the world but collapse of creding in the world but collapse of credit. Collapse of credit in turn is collapse of confidence. Collapse of confidence is the result of collapse of carning power. Inversely we can say collapse of confidence—collapse of confidence—collapse of confidence brings collapse of credit, as bankers are reluctant to lend and bankers are reluctant to lend and business men are reluctant to borrow. But when credit collapses we must still have something with which to transact husiness. ransact business—so currency takes he place of credit and we attempt o get down to a cash basis. Debit-Credit Balance.

"Now, as a creditor country, debits "Now, as a creditor country, debits accrue in this country each year against the debtor country in the form of interest and sinking fund. These debits must be balanced with credits. If economic law had its way the debtor would sell goods to us and get the credits to offset the debits. But the United States has not permitted this. When we came out of the war a creditor country we, at the same a creditor country we, at the same time, continued to sell more goods to Europe than we bought from them. For 15 years we have been a creditor setting up debits against Europe and, at the same time, running a favorable trade balance, setting up still more debits—something utterly uneconomic and utterly unsound. Naturally Euand utterly unsound. Naturally Ed-rope shipped more gold to us when we already had more than our share. But for a long time we covered up this unsound situation by continuing to lend more money to a practically bankrupt Europe and thus temporar-ily supplying them with credits to meet their debits. When we finally meet their debits. When we finally stopped lending, these countries with tremendous debits to us and already drained of gold were forced off the gold standard because they did not have sufficient gold to meet the continued debits to this country. Immediately their currencies rapidly declined in terms of ours.

"England were off the gold standards to the gold standards to the gold standards and the gold standards are sufficient with the gold standards and the gold standards are gold standards."

"England went off the gold standrd in September, 1931. A few nonths later the English pound had ropped from $4.86 to as low as 3.25. As a result the English steel $3.25. As a result the English steel manufacturers were able to quote tin plate at the United States port, duty paid, at about $3.40 per 100 pounds, while United States steel was quoting it around $4.60 per 100 pounds.

"Can't you see that for 15 years we have been pulling gold away from the foreign country, that every time we took gold from him the gold coverage behind his currency was lowered, that the purchasing value of that currency declined, that foreign labor paid in this depreciated currency was producing goods cheaper every day. Toward the close of 1932 we had just about reached a point we had just about reached a point where a consumer in this country could take his United States dollar with its high purchasing value, conwith its high purchasing value, con-vert into foreign depreciated curren-cies and buy his goods cheaper there in spite of our tariff walls. Our whole country was paralyzed with fear over the incessant price decline and liquidation. United States in-dustry was off an earning basis; with this, confidence collapsed and with the closing of all our banks in March 1933 the utter collapse of March, 1933, the utter collapse private credit was complete.

Gold Demand Created. "In the meantime, individuals, tral banks and governments had been hoarding gold and creating an ex traordinary demand for it. In the general scramble for gold and the effort to get on a cash basis, commodi fort to get on a cash basis, commodities and services had been sold attany price until the general price level had become so low that it was utterly impossible to pay debts contracted at a higher price level. Unemployment was at its peak as a result of stagnated industry.

"When a country gets into this extremity something happens to relieve the pressure and currency inflation is usually the answer just as it was in foreign countries. Credit is replaced with currency, the gold coverage declines and the purchasing value of the currency declines. Theredespair we passed legislation in the early part of 1933 giving our presi-dent powers to further inflate our fore, commodities and property values in terms of that currency appreciate making it possible for debts to be paid and goods to be bought. Temporarily, at least, the pressure of liquidation is lifted. This is what would have happened slowly if nature had taken its course. But President Roosevelt did not wait for nature to take its course; he recognized the situation and had the courage to announce that we were off the gold standard. This was the first step in fore, commodities and property values standard. This was the first step in the direction of currency inflation. The United States dollar declined in purchasing value—this formed an immediate and effective tariff against foreign goods and a domestic price rise for commodities and property values in terms of dollars. The result was the most rapid recovery this country ever saw.

there is any doubt about it we will have intermittent periods of flight from the dollar and business uncertainty. There is no question about the ills of uncontrolled currency inflation—the savings accounts of the thrifty are wiped out, the values of life insurance policies are destroyed, producers of export goods are helped unreasonably, consumers of import goods hurt unjustly, debtors are helped and creditors hurt, and so on. The most glaring example of what uncontrolled currency inflation can do is the case of Germany. In 1913 Germany's mortgage indebtedness amounted to the equivalent of ten billion dollars of our money. According to Dr. lars of our money. According to Dr. Kemmerer in 1923 when their currency inflation reached its peak this entire ten billion of debt could have been paid with 1 cent of United States money. Last year I had a talk with Burnard Baruch and he brought out what seems the greatest danger of our present inflationary policies, namely, the destruction of the policies, namely, the destruction of the morale of our people, the danger that the thrifty working people might throw up their hands in despair while the idle might continue to live on the government with no one left to carry on. In spite of all the dangers and criticisms of currency inflation I have not seen any of our sound money authorities propose a plan that could have stopped our trend in that direction. I have not seen any of them propose any satisfactory means whereby foreign countries could secure credits to meet their debits here and stop the world-wide lowering of produc-

the world-wide lowering of produc tion costs and prices. "During this period of unprecedented liquidation in this country there has arisen in our banking picture a situation well worthy of notice. Under our banking law one dollar of excess gold nears in the dark of exder our banking law one dollar of excess gold reserves in the federal reserve can be expanded into $28.50 of credit in our banking system. In ordinary times when the member banks built up excess reserves at the federal reserve to the extent of as much as $200,000,000 the federal reserve officials looked upon it as a danger signal. This meant that our banking system was in position to expand its credit by 28 1-2 times that amount, or $5,700,000.000. Federal reserve officials were therefore afraid we might enter upon a period of overexpansion of credit and overspeculation. Today those excess reserves are nearly $800,000,000, which means our banking system could expand its credit banking system could expand its credit by some $22,800,000,000. This, ac-cording to some authorities, could sup-port a price structure higher than the 1928-1929 era.

AUGUST BUSCH SR. COMMITS SUICIDE

Leader of Brewing Industry Discouraged by Failing Health.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—(A)-August Anheuser Busch Sr., 68-year-old head of the internationally known brewing family, ill from a complication of diseases, shot and killed himself here today in his palatial home.

The rugged son of a German immigrant who started the Busch fortunes picked up a revolver while a servant's back was turned, and fired one shot into his abdomen.

He left an unsigned note, which read:

"Good-bye precious mommie and adorable children."

Known affectionately as "Gussie" by other members of the large family, Busch spent years in preparing himself for the presidency of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., which post he filled after the death of his father, Adolphus Busch, in 1913.

The son cared little for travel or for the society of notables. His chief satisfaction lay in his business, his large farm, and his family.

LICENSE BAN URGED TO CLEAR RANKS OF ADDICT-DOCTORS

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(P)—Revoca-tion of the licenses of physicians who are drug addicts was urged today by H. J. Anslinger, United States commissioner of narcotics, in an address before the annual conference of state medical boards.

A survey made by the bureau of Blanche Ralls, Alabama divorcee. Lieutenant John H. Murrel, former West Point football star, testified in his trial today that his accuser was in a "drunken condition" at the time of the alleged attack.

The young army officer said he was driving Miss Ralls to his military quarters to turn her over to his mother when he stopped his car near the radio tower on the Fort Sam Houston military reservation where she asserted the attack occurred.

He planned to stop there until Miss Ralls recovered, Lieutenant Murrel related. Previously he had testified of being introduced to her at a night-club and of being left with her when other members of the party departed early on the morning of October 22 last.

Murrel testified that his mother was at his quarters "and I knew she would take care of her.'

We first created THE BEST then we colored it

RANGE AMERICAN GAS is a regular gasolinecreated by the same great laboratories that gave the world AMOCO-GAS-the original special motor fuel.

Orange AMERICAN GAS was the first colored regular gasoline.

Color followed quality. We first created the best "regular"-and when we proved to ourselves that we had it-we colored it ORANGE so that you would know the best.

Since then, the orange color has been imitated. But that doesn't mean Orange AMERICAN quality has been equalled.

Color is the only thing added to Orange AMERICAN GAS. It is a pure gasoline from a pure petroleum base.

There's tremendous power in its purity! More than in any other regular gasoline. More in miles, too-considerably more. And, naturally, more economy.

But convince yourself! Fill up with Orange AMERICAN GAS-the best at regular gas price-and ride out the facts!

Socialists Ousted.

Prince-Ernst Rudiger Von Strahemberg, leader of the fascist heimwehr, or homeguard, marched with detachments of his men as far as Linz, where socialists were reported ousted after long and fierce fighting, in which heavy losses were incurred by both sides.

Bichard Schmitz, the newly installed federal commissioner in Vienna, issued an appeal to the populace to keep order and remain calm. He promised a regime in which no favoritism would be shown.

(A dispatch the Berlinger Tage-blatt's Vienna correspondent sent to his paper said he had heard unconhis paper said he had heard unconfirmed rumors that sections of the Fifth Austrian infantry regiment had deserted to the socialists.)

One of those killed in the Vienna working class district was Frau Sever, widow of the former socialist governor of Lower Austria.

In Steyr, Eggenberg, Bruckandermur, Linz, Judenburg, Woergl, Hearring and other places the civil war raged today, but last night reports said the situation outside Vienna was becoming more quiet.

Officials Ousted,

The local agreement will be phrased as agreements with the president similar to the voluntary pact under which the Blue Eagle was distributed.

Generally speaking it will be in-sisted that labor regulations on wages, hours, etc., conform to the established national standard, leaving trade practices such as prices, hours of store operation and the like as principal subjects for local rule.

NRA officials are beginning to admit doubt as to their power to enforce codes on purely local establishments but they remain hopeful that the higher courts will sustain the authority over outlets for nationally-produced goods. They consider such regulation a necessary adjunct to control of interstate commerce. Although NRA had definitely de-cided against regional codes earlier in its career, officials regarded that development as forced upon them by circumstances arising largely through the Blue Eagle campaign which made

COURT RULING

Atlanta Officials Are Undecided as to Next Moves.

By Ralph McGill.

Atlanta's chances for Sunday baseball, with the net proceeds going to charity, were exploded Tuesday some 12 hours after the schedule fight at New Orleans wherein Wilbert Rob-inson, Cracker president, had won a stubborn fight to have Sunday games scheduled for Atlanta. The Atlanta baseball officials planned to follow the plan used by the movie companies in the city which was to give the net proceeds of the Sunday shows to an established char-ity.

This plan had been followed for some months without any trouble, dis-order or complaints. Atlanta baseball officials felt that baseball, being a healthful, outdoor game of harmless amusement, would meet with no op-position if the proceeds went to position if the proceeds charity.

the threat of injunction and harrassment from those radically and unalterably opposed to Sunday amusements. Wilbert Robinson was en route Tuesday from New Orleans to Brunswick and could not be reached for a statement. It is expected, however, that he will abandon the plans and call for the alternate schedule, which does not call for Sunday games in Atlanta.

The situation is a bit ridiculous.
There are eight cities in the Southern association. Seven of them permit Sunday baseball. Atlanta is the lone city where the game is not allowed.

The Atlanta team, however, finds it perfectly legal to play Sunday baseball in other cities.

The people of Atlanta had voted for Sunday baseball. Council, however, has not yet passed an ordinance permitting the game. If this were to be done the Atlanta club would go head with plans for Sunday baseball.

There is no doubt that the cities of Georgia want Sunday baseball. But until the state legislature voids the old blue laws there seems to be no

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13 .- (UP)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—(UP)
Max Schmeling's dream of regaining his heavyweight championship was blasted tonight when he was outpointed by Steve Hamas in one of the bloodiest, most savage bouts ever witnessed in this city of brotherly love.
A crowd of 16,000 persons that packed the vast convention hall from ring to rafters saw Hamas, a young collegian who was a decided underdog in the betting, take eight rounds of the 12 from the man who, two years

They'll be talking about the last ninth and tenth, Schmeling, with a deep, wicked cut over his eye, that deep, wicked cut over his eye, that poured forth a steady torrent of blood, stood out in the middle of the ring and took all that the dynamiting youngster had to offer.

MAX GAME. More than once it seemed that the German must fall from the barrage of lefts and rights that bounced off his chin, but just when it appeared he was through, he'd force a smile to his blood-smeared lips, duck his head, and wade in for more.

In the tenth and eleventh rounds the tide of battle shifted with a ing suddenness Hamas, weary tossing so many punches, and dis-couraged, perhaps, by the fact that his man wouldn't go down under his Sunday punches, slackened off the pace. And the stout-hearted German summoning strength from somewhere, position if the proceeds went to charity.

CITIZENS FAVORABLE.

Baseball officials felt this especially in view of the fact that the citizens of Atlanta, in a citywide election, had voted for Sunday baseball by a wide majority.

The court decision of Tuesday ruled that all Sunday amusements, where admission was charged, were illegal under the old Georgia blue laws. It is possible, of course, that the law officials will ignore these outmoded statutes but there would always be the threat of injunction and harrassment from those radically and unalter-

Midway in the eleventh Schmeling crossed a right that caught Hamas squarely on the nose. The nose promptly began to bleed with abandon. Fifteen seconds after the bell had sounded for the twelfth both men were bleeding. Hamas, so tired he could barely lift his arms, could do little more than cover up as Schmeling, a savage glint in his deep-set eyes, tried desperately for a knock-out.

But the old fire and speed and strength of his title days just weren't there. All he had was boundless cour-age, and that wasn't enough.

The United Press score sheet gave Schmeling but two rounds—the second, when he scored often to the body with a two-handed attack, and the bloody twelfth. The first was even, with both mer a trifle cautious, and most of the business done was from a distance. The German took the second, but from then on to the final, was scarcely a factor. Hamas, remarkably fast for a man with legs so weak they required heavy bandaging, was all over Schmel-ing in the first minute of the third round, and near the close had his man in genuine trouble with a series of stinging rights to the head.

Dr. A. H. Armstrong, faculty chairman of athletics at Georgia Tech and secretary of the Southeastern canference, said yesterday that there is still a good chance to save the annual conference basketball tournament from abolition and that an effort will be made to retain it an effort will be made to retain it as a sports feature at the executive meeting in September.

Dr. Armstrong, who opposed the move to dispense with the tournament at the Baton Rouge meeting last week, also added that the success of the court meet in Atlanta this month will have a great deal to do with its chances of being retained on the conference sports calendar.

away with it," Dr. Armstrong asserted.

MOVE MAY SUBSIDE.

"It is my frank opinion that if the tournament goes over well this year, that the move will subside to a great degree by that time," the conference secretary added.

It is understood that the leading agitators for abolishing the tournament are those coaches who have the leading teams each year and whose games at home are patronized well. They would like to have the title awarded on a basis of round robin play to avoid the risk of losing prestige in tournaments.

"In view of the facts that the so-called minor sports already have been curtailed to a marked degree, I certainly think that this feature of basketball should be retained," Dr. Armstrong continued.

Some of the schools objected to the tournament because of the time that it took away from classes. But leaders.

Dr. Armstrong also expressed the belief that this year's tournament would be one of the most successful ever staged here.

"There are three outstanding teams this year in Kentucky, Alabama and took away from classes. But leaders

"There are three outstanding teams this year in Kentucky, Alabama and L. S. U. and at least two others that have a chance to become 'dark horses,' "Dr. Armstrong pointed out. "I saw. L. S. U. play Mississippi State at Baton Rouge and believe me, this Sparky Wade is greater than ever. He and Big Torrance make a real scoring combination. And Mississippi State, despite the loss of Taylor, their center, still has a very good team."

Dr. Armstrong stated that the award the winning team a bronze plaque this year instead of a trophy and that miniature gold basketballs would be given each player on the winning team instead of the custom-

A plan is on foot to seed eight teams and notices will be sent out as soon as Dr. Armstrong hears from Major Britton, of Tennessee, a co-member of the tournament committee. "I certainly hope that all of the 13 teams will see fit to enter this year," Dr. Armstrong stated.

Hell Pops in Helensville...

It is said to be a long road that knows no turning. Both Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs found the turn at last. It came at Forest Hills last August when Helen Wills Moody, tennis queen for many years, found herself on the way to defeat with a lame back handicapping her play. The big moment had come for Helen Jacobs, shown in shorts, after bitter years of defeat, when Mrs. Moody suddenly decided to default. The packed stands were thunderstruck. The roar that followed rocked the world of sport. (Copyright, 1934, by Grantland

The date of the Southern conter-ence indoor track meet at Chapel Hill has been set back to March 10 this year to allow the athletes a lit-tle more time to get into shape, and to prevent such a gap between the indoor meet and actual commence-ment of outdoor competition. The meet will last only one day, the pre-liminaries being run in the afternoon and the finals at night.

Boys' High and Tech High, of Atlanta, will both probably send teams to this meet as they have in past years. Harold Arnold, of Boys' High, is one of the best high jumpers in southern high schools, and he should stand a good chance to win this event. He is also good at hurdles.

Tech High will propagly send a team for the one mile relay, as this seems to be their specialty indoors. The events open to high schools are 60-yard dash, 70-yard high hurdles, 1,000-yard run, high jump and one-Tech High will probably send Twelve of the affairs were sell-outs and all were an artistic success, according to O'Brien, despite the fact Tilden was handicapped in the far west by an ankle injury.

"Big Bill was advised by a doctor to quit playing for at least a week but he refused and limped through several matches with one ankle all bandaged up," explained O'Brien, "Naturally this did not do him any good and he was being taken into camp with some regularity until he had enough time between engagements to give the foot a complete rest.

"Meanwhile Tilden seemed to get the idea Vines was bearing down a bit unnecessarily for the benefit of the home folks. As soon as he was back in shape, Big Bill let loose again. talian Comes Back Against Cossack: Davis. Cox Got To Draw.

Atlanta's wrestling fans saw more assortment of holds that has been exhibited here in a long while on Henry Weber's program Tuesday night at the city auditorium.

Gino Garibaldi, of St. Louis, one of the trickiest matmen in the business, won in straight falls from Matros Kirilenko, Russian Cossack, after losing the first fall, and Joe Cox, Kansas City, and Karl Davis, former Ohio State athlete, wrestled one hour to a

SWIFT ACTION.

Davis and Cox started the swift action. Davis won the first fall with an arm-shoulder block and a body block in 35 minutes, and Cox squared the count in 11 minutes with a series of body slams, followed by a terrific forearm blow.

The remainder of the time it was about even. One of the wrestlers refused to shake hands with the other as the draw was indicated and bare fists flew fast and furious. Flying tackles were used and Referee Doc Lanford's shirt was torn to shreds in the three-cornered match.

Kirilenko added to the action by throwing Garibaldi in 32 seconds, with a body block in one of the quickest falls on record here. It was the first hold of the main match. Garabaldi came back calmly and squared the count in 35 seconds with a double leg lock.

GIVES UP.

GIVES UP.

He ended the match a few minutes later with the same hold, as the Russian gave up to lose both falls. It was the first time in many months that a match has been won with the

Both Davis and Kirilenko were newcomers and gave the crowd a real show. Davis used a punishing headlock and was one of the fastest wres-

As Tantor appeared Tarzan ceased his efforts to close his teeth on Dorsky's throat and at the same time rolled quickly from the body of the Russian. As he did so, Dorsky's hand found his revolver. "Kill, Tantor!" shouted the apeman. "Kill!"

The little eyes of the elephant flamed red with hate. He trumpeted shrilly as he raised Dorsky high above his head, and, wheeling about, hurled him out into the camp, while the terrified blacks fled into the jungle. Then Tantor charged

With his great tusks he gored him, and then trumpeting and squealing, he trampled Dorsky's body. Nothing could restrain him, although from the moment that Tantor had seized the Russian, Tarzan had sought to stay the great brute's fury.

But Tantor was deaf to commands until he had wreaked vengeance upon his friend's enemy. When his rage had spent its force, he came quietly to Tarzan's side, and at a word from the ape-man lifted him gently in his trunk and bore him away into the forest.

Paper Calls for "United Front" in All Nations Against Fascism.

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.-(AP) - The capital of communism today watched avidly events in Austria and France and, through the columns of the communist party newspaper Pravda, cheered on the fighting workers in both countries.

Their activities, it was explained here, was a fight against the rising tide of fascism. Calling for a "united front" of all workers in those countries, the newspaper says:

"The demonstrations and general strikes in France and Austria show the revolutionary forces against fas-cism are rising and ripening.

"But the only guarantee of a suc-cessful outcome is the adoption of a uniform front and tactics which will enlarge, deepen and embrace wider masses of proletarians and peasants under the leadership of the communist party.

"They can be victorious only if control over the movement is assumed by revolutionary workers headed by the communist party.'

GRADY REPORT SHOWS MORTALITY RATE DROP

Hospital Record Praised by City, County Officials; Fuller Heads Staff.

Citing the drop in mortality figures at Grady hospital since 1930, city and county officials, members of the medical staff and members of the hospital board of trustees Tuesday night paid tribute to "a smooth-working organization which is conquering all obstacles in its march of mercy" at the annual meeting of the staff.

Attended by a large percentage of the 230 staff members, by Mayor James L. Key and County Commissioner Paul S. Etheridge, the meeting sioner Paul S. Etheringe, the meeting assembled in the dining room of the nurses' home. Samuel C. Dobbs, chairman of the hospital board of trustees, presided and asked for additional aid from the city in modernizing the buildings of the institution.

Both Mayor Key and Commissioner Etheridge paid warm tribute to the "efficiency and loyalty of the staff and the working organization within the hospital.'

the hospital."

Chairman Dobbs during the meeting said that a dangerous fire condition existed at the hospital "in view of the fact that the building is not fireproof and is served by an overloaded power line." He cited an official re-port to back up his contention. Superintendent J. B. Franklin was introduced to the gathering.

Dr. George Fuller was elected president of the staff for next year; Dr. William A. Smith was named vice president and Dr. Jack Norris was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Members of Staff.

Following are the Grady hospital staff members for 1934, as announced of the churches and was known throughout Georgia as corresponding secretary and vice president of the North Georgia Missionary conference, and a member of the woman's council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Mrs. Albright was a former president of the Child Welfare Society of Atlanta and was a trustee of the Decatur Orphans' home.

Born in Pine Bluff, Ark., in 1866, the daughter of Patrick McCollum Blue, a Confederate soldier, and Caroline Graham Blue, Mrs. Albright spent her early years there and in Union Springs, Ala. Her ancestors immigrated from Edinburgh, Scotland.

Surviving Mrs. Albright are her husband; a sister, Mrs. D. R. Blue, of Birmingham; a brother, H. P. Blue, of Union Springs, Ala.; three nephews and six nieces.

Answer: By every moral and sentimental law you are doing right. From the standpoint of mere expediency you are doing right and when the children are old enough to grasp the meaning of the problems you have faced, no doubt they will approprie the standard of the problems. lems you have faced, no doubt they will approve the course you have chosen to take. No thinking person can argue that a man's addiction to drink doesn't complicate every phase of his own and his wife's life. As wife, mother, housemaker, his weakness involves her in no end of trials and tribulations. But so does divorce involve her in no end of complexities as woman, mother and wage earner.

But oftener than otherwise we pass on to some other perplexity equally irritating, particularly is this true if we run away from the first one with-out soling its out solving it.

Of course it is hard to live with a drunkard. But it is also hard for a woman to support two children. Of course it is tragic for a woman to sit by and see her children growing up in an atmosphere that is making nervous wrecks of them. But she can do a great deal to avert this damage. She can teach them that the weakness their father indulges in is a disease as truly as tuberculosis is a disease. She can teach them to pity him for his affliction and to love him for She can teach them to pity him for his affliction and to love him for the fine traits of character that are not necessarily destroyed by drink. By controlling herself she can set them the example of self-

Nothing quite compensates children for the loss of their father and their home. Divorce which frequently necessitate the mother's getting out to make a living for them robs them of normal homelife and of father and mother. The sociologists tell us that broken homes make the largest contribution to the courts for juvenile delinquents. Even though a father be a hopeless drunkard (only death is actually hopeless) his natural affection for his children, his headship of them.

Look around you, Wretched Wife, at the women who have stuck to drunkard husbands, kept their homes intact for their children, and then look around you at those who have given up the struggle and resorted to divorce. Which ones have fared better?

CAROLINE CHATFIELD. Dear Miss Chatfield: My girl's par-nts object to me on the ground that ents object to me on the ground that she cares too much for me. I am a hard-working boy and have a fairly good position though I can't consider ♥ 8 6 3 ♦ J 10 9 5 4 W marriage at the present time because of certain obligations that I have to my family. The girl's parents show decided preference for another fellow and don't seem to mind how often she dates him but they are always telling her that I cannot come so often. What can I do to make her family like me better?

DEJECTED.

Answer: Prove your worth by working hard and saving your money. Girls generally reject the suitors their parents pick for them and prefer the one their parents would reject. When a boy demonstrates that he has character, is competent to make a living, and that he is capable of enduring affection he has removed the main points on which sensible parents can base their objection to him. Most players with East's hand would immediately play the king as the queen is plainly marked in the South hand, but the East player in question went much more deeply into the situation than this one superficial consideration. It was obvious to him from the cards in the Dummy and those in his own hand that West must be void of entry cards in any other suit but diamonds. If the opening lead was from a six-card diamond suit, then failure to play the king would cost the defending side one trick, but if, on the to play the king would cost the de-fending side one trick, but if, on the other hand, the king was played and the suit from which the original lead was made was of but five cards, then West would be effectually stopped from cashing any more tricks in that

The New York Cotton Exchange service estimated that domestic mill consumption during January amounted to 515,000 bales compared with 349,000 in December and 470,000 in January a year ago. There was a little southern selling at the opening but offerings from that source were not much in evidence later in the day, and nothing was heard of any easing in the southern spot situation. Part of the early selling here was attributed to interests who had bought in New Orleans yesterday, and with that market closed today, were inclined to hedge their purchases in New York. Fletcher bill. The president of the exchange said the Fletcher bill was too stringent in many respects, particularly in view of the high margin requirements and the provision against corporation officials trading actively in stocks of their companies. This latter should be in a federal corporation law rather than an exchange regulation bill, he believes. But he did announce new rules for the exchange, which may further cause hesitancy on part of traders. These included:

NEW RULES.

1—Members, firms and partners prohibited from participating in or having any interest in profits of any pool, syndicate or joint account organized or used intentionally for the purpose of unfairly influencing market prices of any security by means of options or otherwise and with the intention of making a profit thereby.

2—Prohibits any member, acting as a specialist, or his firm or any of his partners acquiring or granting any option in respect of stock of which such member is a specialist.

NEW YQRK, Feb. 13.--(AP)-Stocks had a quieter and more conventional market today. Some further recovery from last week's shakeout was accomplished despite isolated weakness in liquor and some aircraft issues, although the general run of shares moved narrowly, volume dropped to 2,150,360 shares. The averages were up six-tenths of a point net.

Metals were strong and rails likewise looked up. Motors pointed a bit higher, retail store representatives continued in favor, rubbers found support on stronger tire prices and earnings, American Can touched the best price since 1931 at 105 3-8 and United States Smelting set another record

Mining issues appeared to have derived their stimulation from official assurances that a program for silver rehabilitation was the administrations "firm policy." Silver metal improved slightly:

that advantage should be taken of recessions, such as we had Tuesday, to make purchases.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—We would not hesitate to advise purchases on breaks such as we had Tuesday.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We continue to believe that the wheat market will sell marketically higher before the growing crop is harvested.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—Nervousness over the grain code is restricting business and until something more definite is known we do not look for any material change in prices.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Raw sugar was quiet today and spot prices were unchanged at 3. 40.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Sixty-Third Annual Statement

To Our Policyholders and the Public:

It is with a sense of gratification that the Sixty-Third Annual Statement of The Life Insurance Company of Virginia is presented.

The Company has again added to its record a year of satisfactory rogress. The increase in insurance in force for the year was more than $3,000,000.00. In view of economic conditions which prevailed in 1933 with resultant heavy lapses, we consider even this small increase an outstanding achievement.

Our assets were increased by $977,936.64, and there was a gain in surplus of $245,984.13. An addition of $500,000.00 was made to our special contingency reserve fund, which now totals $4,000,000.00. Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries, including policy loan advances, amounted to $10,583,097.38. The Company's financial policy has been maintained on the same conservative lines as in the past, investments being made with safety of principal the first consideration. Realizing the disturbed state of the public mind in regard to financial institutions, unusually large reserves of cash and government bonds were carried throughout the year to meet any demands that might be made for payments under policy contracts, whether death claims, surrender values, or policy loans. Capital, surplus and special contingency reserves at the end of the year amounted to $14,637,805.33, thus providing a large margin of safety for our policyholders.

We have examined the accounts and financial records of The Life Insurance Company of Virginia for the year ended December 31, 1933. Cash on hand was counted and certificates of cash in banks were obtained from depositaries and reconciled; the investments were examined or otherwise accounted for; and the correctness of all the other assets was established to our satisfaction. Bonds are stated at their amortized value as provided by the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia, and stocks at their market value at December 31, 1933. The reserves on policies in force were computed by the Company's actuary and the statutory portion thereof was confirmed by the Bureau of Banking and Insurance of the Commonwealth of Virginia; and we satisfied ourselves that full account was taken of all other liabilities. In our opinion the above statement correctly reflects the financial condition of the Company at December 31, 1933. Richmond, Va., January 25, 1934.
